

Terms of use for the HMF Group A/S website

Conditions

The site is owned and operated by HMF Group A/S (in the following referred to as “HMF”), a limited liability company registered under Danish law.

Responsibility

HMF provides this website only as a service and as a source of information. We try to maintain the information, software and other services as accurately as possible, but point out that the website may contain errors. HMF disclaims any liability for such errors. All material and content published on the website is provided without guarantee of any kind.

The website may contain links to other websites over which HMF has no control. HMF is not responsible for the availability or content of these websites.

HMF shall take all reasonable precautions to ensure that the website does not contain viruses, worms, Trojan horses or the like. We do not guarantee that the website is free from such harmful programs and disclaim any liability for any resulting loss.

Links to and from other materials

It is permitted to link to the home page of this website. There must be no frames or deep links without the written agreement of HMF. HMF may provide hyperlinks to third party websites. HMF has no control over linked websites and is in no way responsible for the content of these websites. If you want to visit any of the third party websites linked to this website, you do so at your own risk.

Product orders

HMF makes every effort to fulfil all orders, but cannot guarantee that any product displayed on this website is available. HMF reserves the right, at any time and without notice, to discontinue the sale of any product which may be listed on this website.

Rights

The website and its content – e.g. text, images and graphics – is protected by copyright and other intellectual property rights owned by HMF. Certain names, brands and logos on the website are protected trademarks.

Any modification, copying, reproduction, redistribution, publication, commercial exploitation or similar is strictly forbidden without the written agreement of HMF.

Provisions for venue and applicable law

This website is located on a server in Denmark, and the use of the website is subject to Danish law. Any disputes arising out of or relating to the website shall be considered by the Danish courts.

What is a cookie?

A cookie is a small data file stored on your computer used to keep track of your actions during your visit and to recognize the computer. A cookie is not a program and cannot contain viruses. These are anonymous statistics, and the information cannot be traced back to you.